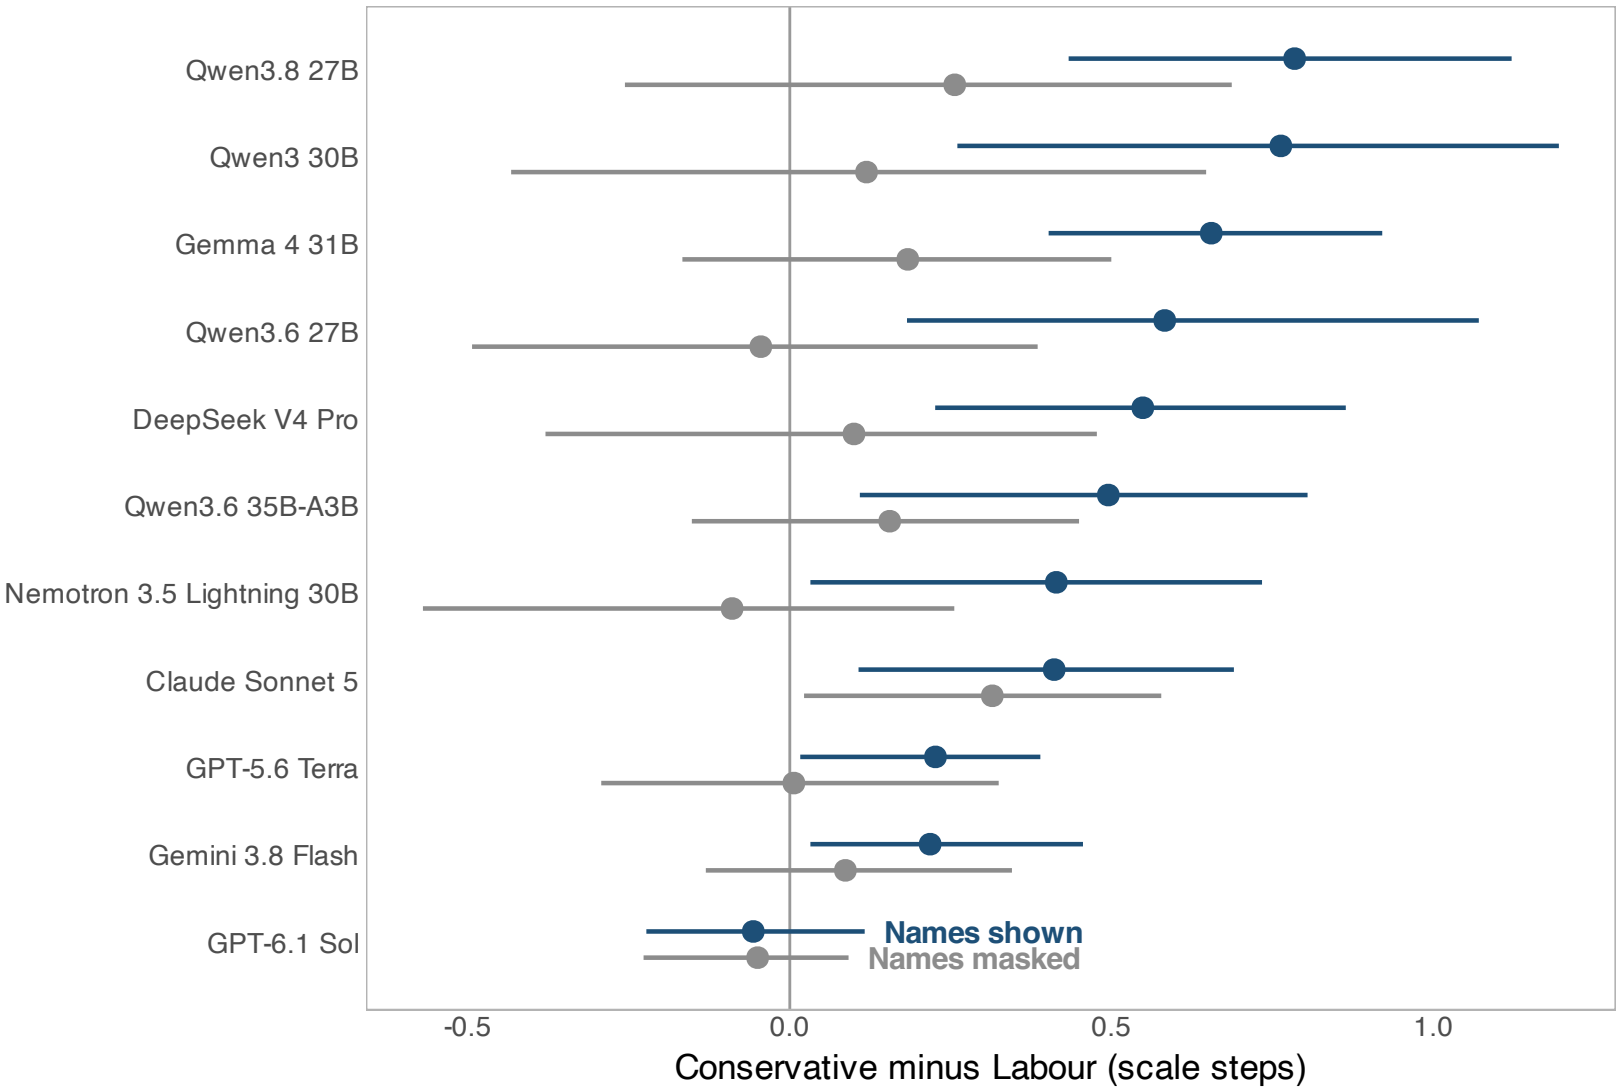
Party names pull Labour and Conservative codes apart

How much further right the model codes Conservative than Labour manifesto sentences that experts placed at the same economic position (steps on a 5-point scale)



192 of 500 sampled sentences whose passage names a party or politician. Masked: names replaced by [PARTY] or [POLITICIAN], everything else identical. Experts saw the same passages, names included, and for about 80% of their codes also the manifesto title (Benoit et al. 2016). Gap net of the expert code and expert mean. 95% intervals, bootstrap over manifestos.
